

Shi Haozhe graduated from Zhejiang Conservatory of music with a bachelor's degree and studied under young French performer Lou Yang. He is now a graduate student of Truman State University in the United States, under the guidance of Dr. Gao Xin, a saxophone player.

He has participated in competitions, master classes, art festivals and other activities in the United States, Thailand and China for many times, and has won good results in international, national and provincial competitions for many times, including the third place in the woodwind graduate group of the American MMTA instrumental music competition in 2020, and the gold Award for solo of the saxophone college group of the Zhejiang

Since entering the University, he has won many scholarships for academic excellence and actively participated in various activities. He has cooperated with Zhejiang Symphony Orchestra to perform in New Year's concert, Prokofiev concert and other concerts. Professor Lin Jiankuan, Otis Murphy, Xie Deji, Nikita Zimin, Asia fateyeva, champion / runner up of Adolf international competition, Panasonic, champion of LunDai international competition and other famous performers have given their careful guidance and won unanimous praise.